Subject: Microsoft settlement

If the previous administration spent as much energy chasing Bin Laden as it did chasing Bill Gates we might not be in the mess we are in now. The proposed settlement is probably too harsh and unnecessary, but let's implement it and move on. Get the "outlaw" states on board, close this issue and let the economy recover. Bill Gates and the other creative minds of the computer age have truly revolutionized the world (for the better) created millions of jobs, huge efficiencies in the way the world works and communicates--he is a hero not a villain. In my own small business automation has enabled us to cut costs in half while growing sales 20%

Implement the proposed settlement, strongarm the remaining states to go along and move on to more important things.

Sincerely,

Doug
